IF THERE WERE BANKS OF SNOW around this building, it would be about how the new Circleville General Electric plant will look. Actually, this photo is of the GE factory in Matteson, Ill., but GE officials said the architectural plans were "about the same." Work on the local $2,500,000 plant has been slowed by recent frigid weather. C. F. Repligle, local contractor leveling land at the factory site, said little work had been done the last two weeks since the frostline is down 24 inches.

Conflicting Masses Of Air Slow Warm Weather Arrival

Ohio was caught between two conflicting air masses today, with the warm one finding it difficult to move in from the west because of pressure from a frigid wave heading southeastward out of the Hudson Bay area.

This situation, according to weather bureau forecasters, was at the most delaying a return to normal conditions over the state and was responsible for another morning of sub-zero temperatures ranging from 10 above to 16 below zero. A slight difference this morning from the last several days was that the extreme low readings were confined to the south central area, with Zanesville heading the list with an official low of 13 below zero. In Circleville, the official thermometer registered a Wednesday night low of seven below zero which, although it did not feel like it to most people, was "warmer" than Tuesday night's low of 18 below.

WEDNESDAY'S high was 21 above and by noon Thursday, the reading here stood at about 18.

60-Day Gasoline Cutback Ordered By Oil Industry

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The petroleum industry ordered a 60-day cutback in gasoline today to produce more fuel oil as Congress stepped into the nationwide oil crisis by calling Defense Secretary James Forrestal before the Senate war investigating committee.

Orders for the voluntary slash in the production of gasoline were sent out after Attorney General Tom Clark approved the industry's plan to pool and allocate petroleum resources during the next 60 days of the critical fuel shortage. Some companies already have taken action to increase fuel oil output.

Other features of the plan which Clark said would not violate the anti-trust laws, call upon the fuel companies to operate all loading and unloading schedules on a seven-day work week and to produce at maximum capacity in all refineries east of the Rocky mountains.

Meanwhile, Sen. Brewster (R) Maine, chairman of the war investigating committee, said that while Forrestal was called to testify on wartime Arabian oil purchases, he will be questioned specifically on the present severe oil shortage and possible steps to curb it.

ALSO CALLED before the committee were former Rear Admiral Andrew Carter, who was in charge of the Navy's oil purchasing in the late days of the war, and Herbert Feis, a State department economic adviser.

The committee has been trying to find out why the Navy paid $1.05 a barrel for Arabian oil in 1945 when the British navy was reported to be buying it at 40 cents a barrel nearby.

The group also wants to look further into Brewster's charges that an oil company executive, Max W. Thornburg, was "planted" in the State department to influence U. S. policy toward Arabia. Thornburg was a director of Standard Oil of California, half-owner of Arabian-American Oil Company.

Bizonia Plan To Continue

FRANKFURT, Jan. 29.—U. S. Military Governor Gen. Lucius D. Clay returned to Germany from Washington today and announced that the United States will continue Bizonia economic arrangements despite Soviet objections.

With regard to renewed Soviet demands that the Anglo-American tie-up be dismantled, Clay said: "The British and Americans will continue to work out its continuance. We do not intend to put an end to bizonal functions until a quadripartite agreement on Germany is reached."

Freedom Lasts Only 12 Hours

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29.—Warren J. Devine, 29, of Columbus was arrested just 12 hours after he was released from the Ohio penitentiary.

Police said he was found near a broken window of the Columbus Buick Co. and his overcoat was found inside the building.

Beirut Riots Reported

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The Soviet monitor picked up a Tass broadcast from Beirut today reporting that "hundreds" were killed or wounded in riotous demonstrations against the Anglo-Iraq treaty.

Beirut newspapers were quoted as saying that police fired machineguns and tommyguns to break up the demonstrations which were said to be continuing.

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

William Green reports from Miami that labor is going to need higher wages in the Spring. It is, too, if its representatives are going to pay Winter prices in Miami.

There is no one who can feel sorrier for the working man than a delegate with warm Florida sand running between his toes.

Everybody feels a little sorry, too, for Mariner Eccles. He got a splendid letter from Harry.

Marriner got the finest letter from a President since Jesse Jones got the courteous bounce.

In fact some suspect that Harry got the idea while going through old White House files.

Meanwhile, Charles Eugene Noggle, six-months-old victim of Sunday's sub-zero temperature at his Pickaway County farm home was expected to be released Thursday from Children's hospital and removed to the home of an uncle, Russell Noggle in Columbus.

The infant was reported nearly frozen when his father, Alton Noggle, dollar-a-day tenant farmer in Scioto township, reported his home was without fuel.

Miss Pauline Reese, Pickaway County relief director, said she would inspect the Noggle home at Lockbourne Route 1, on Friday. Groceries and coal were rushed as emergency relief to the Noggles Tuesday. They also have another son, William, 2. Until Tuesday, the case went unreported to any of the county's relief or welfare agencies, Miss Reese said. The baby was rushed to the hospital Sunday where it was treated.

DR. W. D. LESLIE, chief resident physician at the hospital, said there was no danger of loss of hands, feet or ears from the exposure to the cold.

Yearly Wage Battle Near

8 Big Unions Set For Annual Tiffs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The annual labor-management wage battle may hit its climax in April this year in negotiations involving at least eight major unions and well over two million workers.

A survey indicated today that within 60 to 90 days the nation is likely to be in the midst of disputes covering the steel, coal, railroad, automobile, telephone and electrical industries.

The CIO United Automobile Workers and the CIO Electrical Workers already have served notice that they will seek "substantial" third-round pay boosts. Walter Reuther's UAW will start its drive for a 30-cent hourly boost from General Motors in March while shortly thereafter the electrical workers will move against GM, General Electric and Westinghouse.

CIO PRESIDENT Philip Murray, who also heads the steelworkers union of nearly a million members, will meet with (Continued on Page Two)

Gang Of 150 Robs Jap Train

TOKYO, Jan. 29.—Police conducted a wide hunt today for members of a gang of 150 young men and women who robbed 2,000 passengers aboard a Japanese train of an unestimated amount of money and valuables.

The spectacular train robbery occurred early yesterday. The numerous robbers posed as passengers, then went into action at a given signal as the train was moving along its regular run in Northern Honshu island.

House Opening Debate On Income Tax Cut Bill

Challenges Flying In Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Senate speculation investigators today faced a flat challenge by Sen. Elmer Thomas (D) Okla. Thomas declares he will take no part in any public hearing to air the details of his commodity speculation.

The Oklahoma Democrat said that he will stand on his constitutional rights as a senator and ignore a subpoena if one is issued to summon him to the hearing. Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., chairman of the Senate appropriations subcommittee on food gambling, who was out of the capital today, said earlier that there will be a public hearing on speculation by Thomas.

Ferguson declined to say then whether he would attempt to subpoena Thomas if he refused to appear—giving a hint that the hearing might proceed with the Oklahoma senator absent if necessary. At the same time, the entire senate also faces a challenge. Sens. Morse (R) Ore., and Taylor (D) Ida., introduced a bill to require all federal employees receiving more than $9,000 a year, including legislators, to make public their sources of outside income. The senator declared that higher-bracket public employees and officials should make their investment and income sources public because "too frequently there is a direct relationship between who pays the fiddler and the tunes he plays."

Knutson Seeking Support

Open Appeal Made To Democrats

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The author of the $8.5 billion GOP tax reduction bill, anticipating a veto by President Truman, appealed for Democratic support today as the House opened debate on the legislation.

Rep. Knutson (R) Minn., pointedly reminded his democratic colleagues that when the Truman administration sponsored a $6 billion tax cut in 1945 "we, who were then in the minority, were glad to join with the majority."

He added: "We hope that you, who are now in the minority, will join with us in enacting HR 4790 (the Knutson bill)."

The open appeal for Democratic votes came as GOP leaders on both sides of Capitol Hill were striving to line up sufficient support for the Republican tax cut to override a veto.

KNUTSON ridiculed Treasury Secretary John Snyder's dire forecast of a $2.1 billion deficit next year, if the Republican tax bill became law. He said that the "Treasury was all wet" on its estimates.

Knutson declared that the Treasury was low in its revenue estimates by more than five billions for 1947 and almost three billions for the current fiscal year. He maintained that the nation could still have a $12 billion revenue surplus for the two years despite a tax cut.

The GOP leader declared his bill would help spur production, combat inflation and aid workers to meet the high cost of living.

The House opened two days of debate on the tax reduction bill preparatory to passing the measure Monday.

The legislation then will go to the senate, where Republican fiscal leaders are expected to use the pruning knife. Both Republicans and Democrats anticipate a veto by President Truman and are jockeying back and forth for the crucial attempt to override, which may come in March.

WITH HOUSE passage assured, the Democratic leadership strove to hold its lines against defections in the belief that the smaller the majority for the bill, the greater the chances of its revision in the senate. Speaker Joseph Martin of (Continued on Page Two)

Truman Asks Whisky Ban

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—President Truman asked Congress today to extend government controls on the use of grain by whisky distillers until next Oct. 31.

The government's authority to control the use of grain by distillers expires at midnight Saturday unless Congress acts. The Senate has approved a one-month extension of the controls, but the House banking committee voted against a continuation of the curbs.

Yeggs Grab 2 Cars, $335

Auto, Battered Safe Recovered

Burglars broke into the Lutz-Yates Buick garage, 1220 South Court street, early Thursday and stole a 1948 Buick sedan valued at $2,200, a 1941 Studebaker coach, 500 pound safe containing $110 in cash plus $210 in checks, rifled $15 in change from the cash register, and a new portable typewriter.

The burglars apparently were not meat-hungry. A cured ham, which had been left in one car parked in the garage, was removed and later tossed aside on the garage floor.

By noon Thursday Sheriff Charles Radcliff and a scouring party of deputies had recovered the Studebaker, owned by Bess Fry, 960 South Court street, and the safe which had been broken open and its contents missing. The Buick is owned by Harry W. Heffner, 116 East Union street.

The auto and safe were discovered near the Norfolk and Western railroad overhead on Phillips road, four miles south of Circleville. Sheriff Radcliff disclosed.

He said the car escaped serious damage, but the safe was completely demolished with the money taken. Miscellaneous papers were littered around the scene.

POLICE CHIEF William F. McCrady said he believed the bandits were part of an organized gang working out of Columbus. There were at least three men involved, he said.

In addition to city police and county authorities, state highway patrolmen and a fingerprint expert from Columbus are investigating the burglary.

Adrian Yates, garage manager, discovered the theft about 8 a. m. when he arrived to open the office.

He found the office in disorder and the safe gone. Further investigation revealed the missing automobiles.

Highway patrolmen have been alerted to watch all roads for the new Buick bearing license number Y-53. The two cars were parked in the repair section of the building.

Entrance was gained to the office and garage through a window on the south side of the building. Yates said the missing Buick had only four miles on the speedometer and was ready for delivery to Heffner.

WASHED UP ON THE BEACH during the recent blizzard, a 30-ton, 63-foot sperm whale presents no simple problem to the residents of Mantoloking, N. J., in Brick Township. An appeal was sent to the U. S. ## Grim Task Of Identifying 32 In Plane Crash Starts

FRESNO, Cal., Jan. 29.—The grim task of identifying the bodies of 32 persons killed in the flaming crash of a chartered transport plane near here is under way today.

The two-motored DC-3, operated by the Airlines Transport Carriers Company of Burbank, Cal., was carrying a crew of three, a U. S. immigration service guard and 28 Mexican farm workers voluntarily returning to Mexico.

Witnesses saw the plane trailing smoke shortly before 10:30 a. m. yesterday and moments later the craft apparently exploded, the fuselage crashing into

Schuman Regime Getting Backing Of Socialists

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The government of Premier Robert Schuman won a new lease on life today when the Socialist party decided to back its financial program.

Earlier, a Socialist party decision to abstain from voting on the program had seemed likely to provoke a cabinet crisis.

It was reported that the government's decision to nullify all 5,000 franc banknotes had mollified the Socialists. The measure, aimed at wealthy black marketers and speculators, was implemented by closing of all banks for two days.

The Socialists, who constitute a strong segment of Schuman's parliamentary backing, had objected to his plan for a free gold market as a movement away from state control of finance.

SCHUMAN, who had indicated that he was staking his government on approval of the new fiduciary within 48 hours.

A few hours after Anthony Archdeacon, secretary of a Lausche-for-Governor Boosters' Club, made the statement of Lausche's supposed intentions, the former governor replied: "There is no one with any authority to speak for me. Any statements that have been made have been without my knowledge or consent."

to a rocky canyon in a ball of fire. About a dozen of those aboard either were thrown clear or leaped in a vain attempt to save themselves before the plane hit the ground.

NEARLY 24 hours after the tragedy, Deputy Coroner L. R. Webb said only 13 of the 32 bodies recovered from the twisted and burned wreckage had been identified.

Among those identified were the crew members. Pilot Frank Atkinson, 30, of Long Beach, Cal.; his 30-year-old wife, Mrs. Obie Atkinson, stewardess aboard the plane; and Marion Ewing, 32, of Balboa, Cal., the co-pilot.

Still unidentified however was the body of Frank L. Chaffin of Berkeley, Cal., the immigration service officer. Webb said one of the 28 Mexican victims was a woman.

Meantime, investigations of the crash were launched by federal and local agencies as well as officials of the airlines company who flew to the scene.

THE MAJOR portion of the wreckage came to rest against two pine trees. One of the wings was found about a half-mile from the wrecked fuselage. Apparently it had been sheared off in the explosion. One motor was spewed out 1,000 yards distant.

Bodies of the victims were taken to the Fresno County morgue late last night, each was sealed in a rubber zipper bag to aid in identification.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 29.—Former Ohio Governor Frank J. Lausche walked the fence again today with a denial of reports that he would announce his candidacy within 48 hours.

East-West Peace Seen

Soviet Proposal May Heal Breach

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Diplomatic quarters foresaw a possibility today of a healing of the breach between the Soviet Union and the Western powers as a result of counter-proposals put forward by Moscow on the Austrian peace treaty.

Russia's counterproposals were not of themselves regarded as final, calling as they do for two-thirds of Austria's oil, a $200 million cash payment and a cut in the Danubian shipping company.

But, it was noted, these represent a substantial recession in Russia's first demands.

Submission of the Moscow proposals themselves, coming a month later than promised, appear to break the deadlock which virtually has stopped even moderate conversations between East and West.

The United States, still studying the Russian proposals, is expected to reconvene the four power foreign ministers deputies on the Austrian treaty in London forthwith.

COUPLED with other developments, hopeful diplomatic observers foresaw the possibility of a mild, and possibly temporary reconciliation in international affairs. These developments include:

1. A statement by Soviet Ambassador Andrei S. Panyushkin that talks looking to settlement of Russia's outstanding wartime account will be resumed soon.

2. The suggestion by Britain's wartime leader, Winston Churchill, that the top men of (Continued on Page Two)

Soviets Protest Yank Opening Of Tripoli Base

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Radio Moscow announced today that the Soviet government has protested to both the United States and Britain against the reopening of the Mellaha air base outside Tripoli for use by American Air Transport Command planes.

The Soviets contend that reopening of the base in the former Italian colony presently under British control is a violation of the terms of the Allied peace treaty with Italy.

The Moscow transmitter quoted a dispatch by Tass, Soviet news agency, from New York, revealing that joint protests to Washington and London had been made a week ago.

Tass said that on Jan. 21 Alexander S. Panyushkin, Soviet ambassador to Washington, had sent a note to Secretary of State George Marshall.

IN THE MESSAGE Panyushkin asserted that conclusion of a separate Anglo-American agreement on establishment of a United States "military air base" in the former Italian colony contradicted the treaty terms and that therefore he believed such an agreement "unlawful." The note delivered to Britain was similar. Headquarters of the United States Air Forces in Frankfurt, Germany, announced Jan. 14 that it proposed to reopen the Mellaha base as a service stop for Air Transport Command planes.

World Labor Union Set Up By AFL

Green Says Unit To Combat Reds

MIAMI, Jan. 29.—Plans of the American Federation of Labor today are to set up "a real world federation of labor unions" based on the principles of democracy.

AFL President William Green announced in Miami at a meeting of his organization's executive council that the AFL will join the Inter-American Federation of Labor—a labor group that was formed at Lima, Peru, earlier this month.

The labor leader, at the same time, charged that the present World Federation of Trade Unions—of which the CIO is a part—is a "Communist-inspired movement." Green said the new Inter-American labor group could establish itself as a counter force.

He added that the Inter-American organization of 14 million western hemisphere workers hopes to expand into a world order.

IN ADDITION to announcing their merger with the Inter-American labor group, the AFL executives outlined a program to challenge constitutionality of the Taft-Hartley law.

Green stated that the federation's legal department is working on a number of individual cases to test the law. He said the first of these test cases will probably come up in Connecticut.

According to Green, the AFL branch in Connecticut purposely violated the Taft-Hartley law to bring about a test case.

The section of the Taft-Hartley law, which was purposely violated, prohibits union endorsement of political candidates.

Green said he "welcomes the test" and added that the Connecticut case will be "only the first in a series of tests challenging the constitutionality on the labor law."

Volume, Prices Jump At Local Livestock Sale

Sales receipts from the Pickaway County Livestock auctions held Wednesday show an increase of 85 head over last week's receipts of 936 head.

The market had its ups and downs during the transactions Wednesday, with principle increase noted in the sale of good to choice calves, which rocketed to $30-$36.50 this week, compared to $24-$30 last week.

Cattle receipts in general were up this week, with most notable increase seen in the sale of bulls, which jumped from $18-$22 last week to $23.50 this week.

Hog receipts tended to remain normal, with sale of stags showing most increase. Stags sold for $20 down this week as compared to $18.25 down last week.

Sheep and lambs showed that fair to choice ewes are greatly in demand Wednesday, with prices up to $10-16 Wednesday as compared to $11.50-11.80 last week.

County Music Festival To Be Revived Here

The annual Pickaway County music festival soon is to be revived here, according to George D. McDowell, county superintendent.

A music committee, composed of county music instructors and headed by Richard Valentine, chairman, passed a resolution to stage a music festival in the Jackson township high school either March 18 or 19.

This will be the first county festival since 1942, when the annual affairs were discarded because of the war.

Fred Brobst, instrumental instructor at Ashville, was elected to conduct the orchestral selections, and Mrs. Elizabeth Penney, music instructor at Monroe school, was chosen to lead choral groups.

The orchestra is expected to consist of about 50 to 60 pieces, and the choir will number about 200. The choral group has selected "The Olive" as their Easter cantata, but band selections have not yet been chosen.

The first rehearsal for the group is scheduled for March 8 at Jackson.

Weather Future Dim

(Continued from Page One) handled through soldier's relief, James Shea, county veterans' service officer, said. Shea stated the family would be cared for until the weather breaks or until the father is able to provide for his home.

Observers said the mercury was showing a steady incline and that definite relief from the cold would be felt this afternoon. They predicted a high range of between 25 and 30 degrees, the highest the mercury has been able to climb in a week.

A slight recession was forecast for tomorrow from the cold air mass moving into the New England states.

The outlook was for a drop to around five above zero by Saturday morning, a considerable improvement over low temperatures of the last several days.

An overcast sky, winds ranging between 20 and 25 miles an hour, and snow squalls tonight and tomorrow were included in the forecast for the extreme northern portion of Ohio.

Meanwhile, an estimated 35,000 Ohioans were out of work today due to the acute gas shortage over the state.

Although the Ohio Fuel Gas Company was armed yesterday with a state public utilities commission authorization to shut off all gas not essential to the public health and welfare, the company has refrained from a strict enforcement of the edict.

THE COMPANY reported that its plea to commercial establishments to cut consumption voluntarily has been excellent. A diversion of from 10 to 15 million cubic feet from the East Ohio Gas Company also has improved the situation somewhat.

Many non-essential business places and theatres in the state, which heat with gas, have closed their doors until the emergency ends.

Ice was thickening in the Ohio river and U. S. engineers in the Cincinnati district predicted the river would freeze solid if the cold continued much longer.

Fifteen tow boats and 75 barges were reported caught in ice jams between New Richmond, O., and Rising Sun, Ind. A five-acre sheet of ice, one foot thick, broke loose in the river near Cincinnati, but it stopped 75 feet downstream, allaying any immediate danger to nearby harbors.

With the snow-cover ranging from an inch at Toledo to eight inches at Zanesville and East Liverpool, the state department of highways reported highways still slippery in spots in the West central, south central and eastern portions of Ohio.

Inventory and appraisal records filed Wednesday in Pickaway County probate court on the estate of Albyn G. Zeigler set total value at $1,398.22. The appraisers were: Carmel Raso, George Carfrey and Ralph Hutchins.

policy committee next month to draw up wage demands.

Steel negotiations probably will begin in April, but a strike is blocked by the present contract for another year.

A spokesman for the Independent Communications Workers of America said that 60-day notice reopening contracts of approximately 200,000 telephone workers probably will be filed next month.

The telephone wage agreements expire during a six-week period from April 1 to mid-May but the Taft-Hartley law requires a two-month advance warning on a desire for negotiations on new pacts.

The current railroad controversy also may reach its climax in April. The engineers, firemen and switchmen threatened a strike Feb. 1 in support of their demands for a 30 percent pay boost and changes in working rules.

PRESIDENT Truman appointed an emergency board to handle the case and this action delays a walkout for 60 days.

The biggest enigma in the labor picture is United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis. His current contract runs until next Summer but can be reopened on 30 days' notice.

If Lewis abides by the Taft-Hartley law, he would have to serve notice Jan. 31 in order to reopen the agreement April 1—traditional deadline for the 400,000 soft coal miners.

nancial program by a parliamentary majority, now seems assured of decisive support.

Bills embodying the program are expected to come to a vote in the assembly late today.

Approval of the draft bill nullifying the 5,000 franc notes—largest unit in France's currency system—was voted by the cabinet this morning after the government ordered the two-day closing of the banks.

As partial compensation for the time lost in the two-day closing of banks and other credit institutions, it was announced that the banks may reopen Saturday and do business throughout the day rather than just in the morning.

The move to nullify the 5,000-franc notes was described as a step against inflation.

It will permit the government to gain control over sections of the populace felt to include elements whose activities breed inflation.

Although proposed steps to nullify the 5,000-franc notes are not part of the free-gold bill, the move is complementary.

Concert Tickets Claimed Good In Other Cities

Solicitation for members for the proposed Circleville Community Concert Association continued Thursday with officials declaring members of the local group would be permitted to attend any concert sponsored by about 40 other cities in the state.

Mrs. Sterling Poling said local members could attend concerts sponsored in such nearby cities as Lancaster, Chillicothe, Hillsboro and Washington C. H.

She said Donald Dame, soloist, is to appear in Lancaster soon and that Morley and Gearhart, piano team, was booked by Washington C. H. and that Circleville members could walk into these concerts merely by showing their Circleville membership cards.

The local group Saturday ends its campaign to secure 700 adult members at $6 each and 100 student members at $3 each.

East-West Peace Seen

The Big Three get together in an effort at final settlement of difficulties. President Truman has indicated he thought any international conference on this scale should be held in Washington.

Settlement of the Austrian treaty would be an important step toward peace between Russia and the West since it is the key to settlement in Central and Eastern Europe.

It is believed possible, too, that such measures as the Marshall Plan and British Foreign Minister Bevin's proposal for a Western European confederation may provide a formidable diplomatic front against Soviet expansionism.

Account Filed

Final accounting on estate of Christina Hill was filed Wednesday in Pickaway County probate court for the approval of Judge Sterling Lamb. Florence Prichard, administratrix, entered the account with assets and expenses tallied at $8,497.70.

DEATHS and Funerals

He was president of the missionary board of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union and served as pastor in the London church for many years. He died in his home, Washington C. H. Jan. 20.

The Rev. E. A. Keaton, moderator, Churches of Christ in Christian Union and pastor of North Columbus church, gave a memorial sermon; the Rev. Charles Lucas, pastor of the London church, read the obituary; the Rev. Arthur George, pastor of Washington C. H. church, read from Scriptures and offered prayer. Floral tributes banking the altar were sent from nearly every state in the Union, Canada and Mexico. Interment was in the London cemetery.

MRS. ELLSWORTH BROWN

Surviving are the husband, Ellsworth; two sisters, Mrs. Lovetta Crosby of Columbus and Mrs. Ethel Harris of Circleville; one brother, Harley Tann of Los Angeles.

The Rev. Ephraim Grundy officiated at services in Whitsel-Root funeral home. Burial was made in Greenlawn cemetery.

New Version Of Tax Given

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29.—The Columbus income tax applies to all state and county officers and employees whose offices are within the city limits.

So says City Attorney Richard W. Gordon in an opinion given City Auditor R. P. Bartholow yesterday.

Gordon's ruling is directly opposed to a ruling by County Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett, who said county employees were exempt from the one half of one percent tax.

Knutson Seeking Support

Mass., conceded before debate opened that there would not be a two-thirds' vote for the Knutson bill Monday, but predicted that Democrats as well as Republicans "will get on the bandwagon" when the time comes for the final vote. He anticipated little opposition in Republican ranks.

There is considerable belief on Capitol Hill that the tax cut that finally goes to the White House after senate revision and conference agreement will total in the neighborhood of $4 billion.

Republican leaders express confidence that such a bill, if vetoed, would become law without the President's signature.

Taft Promises No Attack In Stassen's State

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Sen. Taft (R) Ohio will refrain from criticizing Harold E. Stassen when he invades his presidential opponent's home town of St. Paul for a Lincoln Day speech two weeks hence.

This was made clear today despite the Senate GOP leader's open displeasure with Stassen's bold decision to fight for nomination in the Taft-dominated Ohio primary May 4.

Taft viewed the former Minnesota governor's Ohio challenge as a violation of party custom and a threat to Republican harmony. He personally tried to dissuade Stassen last Saturday from taking the step. Stassen insisted on going ahead.

But it was learned reliably that however sharply Taft may set down his views on campaign issues at St. Paul, the senator will not single out Minnesota's favorite son for reprimand or reproach.

Taft's Feb. 12 St. Paul speech, which may be the most important one of his eight-day Lincoln Week campaign swing out of Washington, will be made before the Lincoln Day Republican Club of that city.

Big Beef Barbecue Scheduled

500 Are Expected At Bureau Meet

Pickaway County farmers, who attend the annual Farm Bureau meeting in Memorial hall Saturday, are in for a big feed, officials in charge of the affair said Thursday.

A barbecued beef tops the menu for the noon lunch. In addition to this, there will be plenty of ice cream, potato chips and homemade cookies for the estimated 500 persons who will attend morning and afternoon sessions.

Officials said the morning session, due to start at 10:30, will be featured by election of directors and annual reports.

Pickaway County Farm Bureau, Inc., and the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association are merged for this particular annual event.

J. W. STANFORD of Lexington, Ky., secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, is to be here for the feature address.

Making up the barbecue luncheon committee are Mrs. Ralph May of Circleville township, Charles Schleich of Deer Creek township and Herman Bugar of Walnut township.

James Mowery of Washington township is chief carver and Mrs. Roy Newlon is responsible for drinks.

At present the Farm Bureau has a membership of approximately 450 while the 27-year-old livestock cooperative has about 2,500 names on its rolls.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Observer

The ponderous solemnity of Britain's House of Lords as an unfailing check against extreme radicalism stood unchallenged today in the face of the Labor government's first real effort to curb its power.

A debate that has been set in motion by a government bill that would limit House of Lords' vetoes to a maximum of one year's duration instead of two attracted scant attention among the rank and file of Britain.

But historically the issue is of importance. Any measure affecting in any way traditional parliamentary methods is bound to have repercussions everywhere. For, through the civilized Western world, there are few legislative bodies that are not founded on the precedents established along the Thames.

Prime Minister Attlee's bill to curb even to a limited extent the powers of the upper house was presented many months ago.

SINCE THEN unforeseen incidents have occurred to render the measure almost anachronistic. Chief among them, of course, is the split between East and West.

This has served to dilute British Socialism to an amazing degree, even to the extent of rendering its foreign policy as regards the Soviet Union fully as adamant and determined as that of old-line Tories.

The strange turnabout in the situation even enabled one austere member of the house to propose sardonically that the Labor government drop its lukewarm bill and substitute for it a far-reaching and thoroughgoing "reform bill."

Attlee's government has survived for half its allotted term in spite of some of the most atrocious timing in British history.

27 YEARS, NO MISHAPS

Buses, Not Kids, Change, Veteran Driver Claims

"Kids will always be the same" is the opinion of Floyd Reid, Laurelvale Route 1.

He should know for he has been driving children to the Salt Creek Valley township school for the last 27 years without an accident or missing a day.

His unmarred record began in 1921 when students were hauled to classes in a horse-drawn bus, "nothing like the ones we have today," Reid hurried to add.

Modern "carriages" are equipped with safety glass, heaters, comfortable seats, and good brakes, and there are dependable roads.

THE NEW, roomy buses can seat a capacity 48 students compared to the 25 maximum of the horse and wagon era, Reid said. The veteran bus driver has enjoyed little change in scenery in his 27 years experience. He has been driving the same route, "but of course," he smiled, "there have been some additions to my route when more families settled here and began raising their families."

Reid now drives 38 miles to and from school daily to carry his 42 charges to class. "I've watched them come and go—with faces all friendly and eager. They keep coming in a never-ending line," the driver mused.

The first four years of Reid's bus driving career were with the horse-powered bus. Those wagons had no heaters in them and only cloth curtains to protect the riders from cold and rain. There were no modern snow plows and few paved roads to insure safe passage.

"I'm always aware of my responsibility with those kids," Reid commented. His record proves he has been careful.

Times change and will continue to change, he said, but kids never will.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 29.—Cincinnati taxicab companies could charge an additional 10 cents for the first mile, bringing the cost to 45 cents, today following approval of increased fares.

REA Now Equipped With Two-Way Radio Transmitters

Office Calls Trucks Out On Highway

Addition Labeled Big Time-Saver

The Circleville branch of South Central Rural Electric Co-op, Inc., is one of four divisions to install two-way radio-telephone service between offices and maintenance trucks on the road.

S. J. Fischer, manager of the local office, said the service, which had been in operation here for about 10 days, was installed to give quicker response to customers and get more efficient use of road equipment.

Besides Circleville, other sets are installed at Lancaster, the firm's main office, Hillsboro and one is nearing completion at Canal Winchester. Fischer said one set alone costs approximately $4,000, but it would easily pay for itself by man hours saved and cutting wasteful use of road equipment.

LIKE ANY radio station, the sets are regulated by Federal Communications Commission and are operated on the new frequency modulation.

In the local office is the sending and receiving set, a compact modern styled metal cabinet, and the microphone. A private telephone line is in operation to the Pickaway grain elevator on South Western avenue where the transmitter is located. An antenna has been constructed atop the elevator.

Broadcasters in the Circleville office are Norma Brown, M. L. Mowery and Fischer.

The trucks which carry crews and equipment, also have sending and receiving sets. Each station and truck has its own call numbers and letters used for identification, Fischer said.

From Fischer's office, nine linemen and two vehicles are kept in readiness for any emergency. The four stations also keep in contact with each other with the new radio equipment.

"Saturday proved the usefulness of our radio-telephone service," Fischer pointed out. "A home owned by S. J. Tootle of near Five Points burned down and live wires were scattered over the road."

"We radioed to repairmen in one of our trucks, which was going in the opposite direction, to turn around and head for the emergency area. It might have been a couple hours before crews could have been alerted to repair the broken lines without the radio," the manager stated.

Columbus Cops Get Lecture

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29—Officers of the Columbus police force carried out their duties today under stiff warning from Safety Director C. C. Cole that they must instill discipline and courtesy in their subordinates or face demotion.

At a meeting Wednesday attended by Retiring Chief Lester W. Merica, Inspector Thomas A. Scully said: "Each of you must do his duty as a commanding officer or be replaced by a man who will do it. You must put aside your personal likes and dislikes and consider each person in the department as an individual with a job to do."

Unemployment Figures Show Good Year

Good business conditions and peak postwar employment were reflected in the labor market figures for 1947 released today by C. C. Thomas, local bureau of unemployment compensation manager.

The average number of persons actively seeking work through the facilities of the BUC was 104,000 in 1947 as compared to 167,000 a year earlier. On Nov. 30, 1947, the number of such job-seekers hit a new post-war low of 62,000.

The Ohio state employment service, a BUC division, found 308,976 jobs in 1947, a four percent jump over the previous year's total. The number of jobs located for handicapped persons in 1947—16,070—was particularly significant inasmuch as it represented a one-third increase over 1946.

Counter to the general placement trend in 1947 were the 100,936 jobs found for veterans, a five percent drop from 1946. The mass demobilization of servicemen tied in with an unusually high industrial demand for workers made 1946 a banner employment year as far as veterans were concerned.

THE BUC'S employment service did a topnotch job in 1947 in its occupational counseling and testing program. Counseling interviews with job-seekers totaled 53,579, 46 percent over the 1946 total. Eleven of the employment service's key local offices maintained full-fledged testing and counseling programs during 1947.

The number of jobs found for clerical, sales, service and unskilled workers was up in 1947 over 1946. Job placements in non-manufacturing industries were up 15 percent in the same period.

The number of jobs found in the manufacturing industries was down seven percent for 1947 as compared to 1946. As a result, the proportion of non-manufacturing jobs to total jobs found by the Employment Service in 1947 was 56 out of every 100 as compared to 51 out of every 100 a year earlier.

Texas leads all states in many items. It has a much larger production of petroleum than any other state in the Union, its lands are productive of many kinds of farm crops, and in all parts of it are manufacturing institutions of various kinds.

WHY YOU MUST SAVE FUEL OIL NOW

Here's the problem that must be faced

This is what we're doing to meet the situation

Here's how you can help stretch the supply

YOU...your neighbors...your schools, your hospitals...are faced with a serious situation—the possibility of not having enough fuel oil to last the winter. Never before has it been more important that you save fuel oil and kerosene.

This is the case despite the fact that right now, more oil products are being produced and delivered than ever before in the nation's history. With more oil burners, more cars, more diesel trains, planes, farm machinery, the demand for oil exceeds even peak war years. Oil is asked to do—and does—more all the time!

EVERY BRANCH of the oil industry is working at breakneck speed to meet the ever-growing demand. Production of oil products is now at an all-time high...oil reserves at a record high level.

The oil industry is spending over 4 billion dollars to find new sources of supply...to expand refinery and distribution facilities...to provide extra, faster methods of transportation. But in this industry, as in many others, there are difficulties in obtaining necessary materials to expand facilities—refineries, means of transportation, storage. To correct the situation will take time.

In the meantime, there's one way you can help: save all the fuel oil you can...right now! It's the best way you can insure yourself having enough fuel oil the rest of this winter.

Save MONEY... save FUEL OIL... help stretch the supply.

1. Keep temperature at moderate level—not more than 68 degrees. Turn thermostat to 60 or below at night.
2. Keep doors, windows closed, shades drawn. Close off unused rooms.
3. Install storm windows and insulation to keep heat in... cold out.
4. Have your heating system checked to be sure you're getting the most efficient use of your fuel oil.

If everyone cooperates, the current "pinch" need not last too long. As soon as it is humanly possible, there'll be enough oil for your ever-mounting needs. The greater your cooperation, the sooner that day will be.

If everyone saves... there will be enough for all

ITALIAN VIEW

A DISPATCH from Rome to the New York Times reports that Italian Foreign Minister Count Carlo Sforza, speaking in Naples at a meeting of the Italian Republican party, dealt realistically with Communist accusations of ulterior motives behind the Marshall Plan.

Sforza voiced the fear that the United States may tire of "so many paltry accusations and insinuations" and retaliate by turning her back on Europe and its difficulties. The Italian diplomat believes that the Marshall plan is above suspicion and approves highly of its underlying principle which demands equal effort and co-operation from those to be assisted. He implies that a failure of the plan would be equally as great a disaster for Russia and her cohorts as for the rest of Europe.

It is noteworthy that Italy, which has in the past so often tried to be all things to all men, to her own ultimate detriment, now comes out strongly in favor of the forces which are working for the future peace and prosperity of Europe.

ENVY OF ALL BOYS

ONE MORE Mississippi River pilot has gone, Capt. B. F. Weaver of Memphis, Tenn. The diminishing opportunity for pilots is indicated by the fact that he retired in 1938, when only 46.

In his day the river pilot was the envy of most men and all small boys. Mark Twain, a pilot in his day, has, in "Life on the Mississippi," told the amazing requirements of the job. He had to know every trivial detail of 1,200 miles of river, every sunken wreck, every snag, every sand-bar, the depth of every crossing, so thoroughly that on the darkest of nights he could tell where he was and what piloting conditions he had to face. Add to that the changes that the constantly shifting river brings, and the landsman will conclude that the pilot earned every bit of his prestige.

No job today is half so envied by boys, unless it be the G-man's.

NEW YORK PROSPECTS

PARTY registration figures from New York City give the Democrats over 1,400,000, the Republicans over 400,000, the American Labor party, which is expected to support Wallace, over 200,000, and the Liberals, who plan to support President Truman, about 100,000. These figures, if carried over into the Fall election, would not be very encouraging to the Republicans, as a 1,000,000 Democratic plurality in the metropolis is greater than any probable Republican majority up-state can overcome. The catch is that people don't always vote according to their party registration. The Republicans hope that this is one of the cases.

Up to another morning of great cold and got no pleasure out of it except anticipation of the far future when with whiskers waving on a cold morning will be able to say: "Buster, you ain't seen nothing." You should have been around here in '48 when it got down to 50 below zero and the snow was a dozen feet deep. Think we won't lie about this weather in future years? You're silly!

Headed downtown in a very reluctant wagon and finally delivered it to Bish with instructions to put winter grease in the transmission and differential. Told him it looked as though winter finally is on the way and that I wish to be prepared for it. Once again did notice snow from the plows piled up at the curbs and wondered why it would not be better to pile it in the middle of the streets so that motorists could reach the parking meters and would not have to wade snow to their hips in order to gain the sidewalks. Looks like common sense, but apparently it isn't.

There goes Bill Betts, a grandpappy again, and hardly looking the part. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Betts, of San Juan, P. R., are the parents of a daughter born Jan. 16. Bob is a CPO in the Navy. Tilted an attentive and interested ear to a report that the population of Forest cemetery was 10,528 as of January 1. Outgrowing the city.

Chatted with Clarence Helvering, just back from California, and learned that haircuts out there are $1.75 and shaves $1. I'd let mine grow even longer than I do hereabouts. And that the real estate tax rate in Santa Cruz, where he visited relatives, is $74 a thousand. Local rate $18.80. So, they really pay for that warmer (maybe) climate.

Bob Colville all smiles. Just received a request from Country Gentleman for colored pictures and information relative to our annual Pumpkin Show. Promise of publication. That Fall show is good enough to make several national magazines, but some around here think it has outlived its time. Bosh!

Here comes Charlie Carter, the weatherman, looking none abashed and disclaiming all responsibility for the polar touch. Says what is to be is and that he can do nothing about it. Wish he could. Then he would or we would stake him out on a frigid plain.

Women—Please skip this paragraph. FOR MEN ONLY. Here it is, fellows, the perfect out for the housecleaning days that are not too far off. You can be allergic to house dust. Doctors have so decreed in at least one local case. Vaden Couch is the fortunate one. Aggravates his sinus trouble no end. Now, if you stand pretty well with your doc you should be able to fix up yourselves for the Spring season. Me, I'm doubly fortunate—I hope. I'm allergic to both the housecleaning work and the house dust. The former is generally accepted as a fact. Now, if I can get only a little medical cooperation.

Stopped in at Central fire station and saw the smoke eaters' bird cafeteria in operation. Fine beef stew hung in a small tree above the snow level. Only way some of those little chaps have of eating when the weather is like this. Might give them a lift for a few days.

These Days

Hollywood, California
My dear Miss Turner:

The other day, I saw you in "Cass Timberlane" and I have been thinking about you ever since. In that picture, "Cass Timberlane," you do some grand things. Yours is a warm part and the audience loves you and sympathizes with you and is genuinely happy that it all turns out well in the end, that you and your husband make up and will live together in marriage.

Then I pick up the newspapers and the gossip columns and read of your doings and purported doings and it is all such a sad disappointment.

And the reason for the disappointment is that you people in the movies look very real on the screen. It is somehow a living personality with whom one spent a few hours. I suppose that is why the public is so interested in your doings.

Never before has gossip been as important in newspapers or radio as today—when so much is written about the private lives of famous and even obscure personalities. The public seems to be inordinately interested in your private lives. To very young people, some of you movie stars are as real as members of their own family. That is a great responsibility.

I know a teen-ager who can name every husband of every movie star and all those who were reputed to be lovers of this one and that one. And her mind seems to be full of such doings. It is not a wholesome thing, that. It is, in fact, degrading that to such a young person the institution of marriage is a ladder of many rungs, each rung representing a husband. She can tell me who has had two, three, four or five husbands and how many husbands have had how many wives.

I once saw a motion picture in which a comparatively new actress played a beautifully ecstatic religious role. She was glorious. I was so deeply moved that I almost felt her beautiful hands touch me with a blessing.

Then it happened. A noisy divorce with shattering gossip. It was nothing but movies.

Why does not someone produce a movie to show that divorce is an excellent institution? Why, for instance, in "Cass Timberlane," don't you in the end go off with the cad who steals his best friend's wife? Actually, neither you nor your producer nor the corporation that employs you would dare produce such a picture. Who wants a cad to win? Who would support the notion that the grand institution of marriage should be sacrificed to whim and restlessness? You could not get any box-office for such a picture—not even those who live that way would come to see it.

Yet, you people who live in a play world can somehow divide your personalities. Every word you speak before the finale of "Cass Timberlane" is a great preaching. But to whom are you preaching? To the youngsters in your audience? To the millions of adults who have lived their long lives together in the sacrament of marriage? To whom are you preaching?

Perhaps you have an answer to all this? You did answer in "Cass Timberlane."

Yours sincerely,
George E. Sokolsky.

It doesn't seem fair that this atomic energy everybody is talking about isn't utilized for getting to work in the morning.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Nervous System Disorder

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
MULTIPLE sclerosis is a disorder of the nervous system in which widely scattered damage occurs to the nervous tissue in the brain and spinal cord, and is reflected in difficulty in the use of various muscles, particularly those governing walking and speech.

The condition is tragic, not only because it is long continued, but because in the past there has been no treatment for it. Some patients do improve of themselves after a time, but by far the greatest number continue in a steadily downhill course.

Exact Cause
Despite much research, the exact cause of multiple sclerosis has never been discovered. Recently, however, a most promising theory has been advanced. According to this idea, the ultimate cause is thought to be in some disorder of the blood's clotting mechanism. On this basis, it is suggested that the formation of blood clots in the tiny veins of the brain and spinal cord bring about the widespread, "pin-prick" damage to the nervous system so characteristic of multiple sclerosis.

With a working theory of the nature of the disease, it was a short step to devise treatment with a preparation, known as dicoumarin, which has the effect of diminishing the clotting power of the blood. For this reason there is some danger of hemorrhage in the use of dicoumarin; hence, it must be given carefully and in small doses under the constant supervision of a physician.

Put in Hospital
In carrying out the treatment, a number of patients were put in a hospital for two weeks, and the effects of the dicoumarin on the blood were determined. During the treatment, the patients were tested from time to time and, if any signs of threatened hemorrhage developed, the use of the drug was stopped.

The effects of this treatment were evaluated on the basis of whether or not it prevented the appearance of new symptoms.

Forty-three cases were treated with the preparation over a period of from six to forty-seven months. Twenty-seven of the patients were those who had recurrent attacks and, in twenty-three of these, the treatment prevented any further attacks. In four cases, relapses did occur.

No Effect Found
In nine of the remaining sixteen patients, in whom the disease was becoming progressively worse, no effect from the dicoumarin was found. In the remaining seven cases, it appeared that the use of the drug was of some help, since no changes in the severity of the disorder could be detected.

Improvement in the already existing symptoms cannot be expected with the use of this preparation. All that can be hoped for is that the disease can be kept from becoming worse. The treatment is helpful only while it is being used, and the patient, if he is to be helped by it, should continue using the preparation the rest of his life.

Of course, treatment of this type can only be used under the direction of a physician, as a careful check of the blood must be made from time to time to make sure the right amount of dicoumarin is being employed. Furthermore, reactions may occur in the form of bleeding gums, nosebleeds, and pains in the back. When these symptoms develop, the use of the drug must be stopped for the time being.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
N. B.: One of my breasts is noticeably smaller than the other. What would cause this and what can be done about it?
Answer: Just why one breast is smaller than another has not been definitely determined. However, this will cause no difficulty. There is no treatment known at present which will overcome the condition.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

COULD Tom have killed Mike in one of his fits of rage? He could, but there was no evidence of it, Catherine concluded. He was nervous and upset and his amiability had curdled. But wasn't that natural enough?

Like Angela, Tom was deeply conventional, in the best sense of the word. He wanted things to go smoothly, decorously, in an ordered course. He was probably hating this involvement in a murder case with all his soul. The requirements of Casanova's wife were as nothing compared to those of a rising young gynecologist.

Then there was Francine. Could Francine kill? Or Hat? How could you answer a question like that? Francine was cool, level-headed and matter-of-fact. The dynamo that drove her was self-interest. If her interests, or Tom's, were deeply enough involved—who could say? As for Hat, she wasn't encumbered with scruples—and she was undisciplined. She had had much too often, too soon, had never since infancy wanted for anything that money could buy—and it could buy a great deal. All three of them had disliked the idea of Angela's marriage to Mike. . . . Catherine shook her head. It wasn't good enough. Mike was a rich man. Angela's marrying him wouldn't have deprived them of anything important enough to kill for.

The bonds were at the root of it. Mike had discovered who had the bonds. . . . Even that wasn't conclusive. Say Mike had discovered that Tom, or Francine or Hat, had appropriated the missing twenty thousand dollars worth of negotiable securities. He would simply have gotten them back and returned them to the estate without making a fuss. . . .

The other three, Angela, Nicky and Stephen Darrell, were unthinkable. And yet, someone had the bonds. . . .

Shut up in the prison of her mind, faced with those six black walls, Catherine tried to batter a way to freedom. There was a lot about Mike they didn't know. He was away from New York most of the time. During the last year and a half he had aged. For one thing, his hair had turned completely white, and some of his buoyancy, his aliveness, had gone. That could be worry, strain, he might have gotten mixed up in something dreadful. . . .

Last but not least there was the little man in the shabby brown Chesterfield who had been hanging around outside the Wardwell house on two occasions, immediately preceding Mike's death. . . .

She took pressing palms from her temples, lit a cigaret, her eyes going over the big hideous gloomy room that someone had entered while she was out for a walk. Her gaze traveled over the chandelier that should have been in the Smithsonian Institute, over the bureau with her scarves lying on top of it, the green scarf and the yellow and black striped one. The Sheriff must be a family man. He had left them neatly folded. Someone's elbow had knocked the green scarf half off. It trailed down across the front of the bureau. It

... Catherine's eyes widened and she almost dropped her lighted cigaret. The green scarf hung in straight folds except for one corner. That corner was caught firmly in the opening of the second drawer.

The second drawer was hand height from the floor. . . . To catch the scarf like that the drawer must have been opened and closed after Sheriff Terry had finished with the bureau—after the others had come into the room—after the room had been searched and found free of incriminating material—when it wouldn't be found again. . . .

Catherine walked across the floor with small stiff steps. She opened the drawer, and stood motionless, staring down. The bonds were there, lying on folded newspaper lining the bottom of the drawer. She had never seen them before, but Inspector McKee's description had been graphic. She recognized them at first glance. Two long stiff oblongs of folded paper. She picked them up, unfolded one. It bore an imposing legend in a copperplate script above rows of red and green stamps that were coupons. None of the coupons had been clipped.

Catherine's breathing was flat, shallow. Someone who had been in the room after the Sheriff's search had opened the drawer under cover of the talk and confusion and moving about, and had dropped the bonds into this hiding place when he or she heard they were all to be searched and that their rooms were to be searched.

She tried to think. Who had been near the bureau? That had been near it at one time or another. But . . . She stopped pushing hair back from a damp forehead and stood sharply erect. There was one way she could find out. Whoever had left the bonds here would come back for them. They were valuable and an effort would be made to retrieve them.

All she had to do was wait. Anybody intending to come and get them would tap first to make sure the room was empty. If she didn't answer, the assumption would be that she wasn't there. . . .

She made a survey of possible places in which to conceal herself. The bureau was to the left of the wall, the immense wardrobe to the right. There was a narrow space between the wardrobe and the north wall. That would do. She stepped into the niche, leaned against plaster, and waited.

Minutes passed. Her forehead and the backs of her clenched hands were covered with a fine dew. The house was well built. There was very little sound, the far-off tinkle of pans, the bark of a dog, the faintest thread of a voice clucking to chickens. She went on waiting and the room waited with her, secret and still. What she could see of the furniture, the bed, the square table, the rocking chair, took on strange shapes, as though they had a watchful life of their own.

Catherine shifted her weight from one foot to the other, and became rigid, off balance. There it was, according to Hoyle, the thing she had been listening for, the tap on the door. There wasn't even a preliminary footfall. Two more taps, soft ones, gentle. A pause. Soon now, very soon, she would know.

The door was opening. Another pause. The door closed, softly. Beyond the wardrobe, hidden by it, someone was moving across the floor. Catherine stood up straight. She moved soundlessly out of her hiding place—and barely repressed an involuntary cry. It was Stephen Darrell who had come into the room. His back was toward her. He was at the bureau, stooping over the open second drawer.

Catherine got her voice under control with a stuporous effort. She said, "Did you want something?" and Stephen Darrell spun round. His face was the face of a stranger, stripped of flesh, the skin taut, his mouth flattened out of shape, his eyes a narrow gleam under a bent forehead. He looked at her and the suggestion of imminent action, of speed, went out of his braced stance. His expression changed to one of open relief.

"Oh, it's you. Thank God! You gave me a scare. I thought you were dead."

Catherine stared at him. "Did I?" she said stonily. "I'll take those bonds, please."

Stephen was holding them in one hand. He frowned at her. He shook his head. "I don't think so. . . . You're scarcely the person to find them. When the police don't find them, they'll probably come back to you. You took a walk this morning. They'll figure that you hid them somewhere outside."

"This was intolerable. He wasn't frightened or discomfited. He was perfectly cool and at ease. Did he think he could twist her around his finger?" "Where did you get those bonds?" Her peremptory demand had no effect on him.

"Just a minute." He went to the door, opened it, looked out into the corridor, listened, nodded as if he were satisfied and closed the door. He looked it, and turned back into the room. He moved over to the bed, propped his length against one of the bedposts and scrutinized Catherine's face thoughtfully.

"I see. . . . You think I took those bonds from Mike Nye's desk the night he was killed, don't you? You're wrong, Catherine. I didn't take them. Mike Nye was dead when I went in, and the bonds weren't there. I never saw hide nor hair of them till this morning."

His very quietness was arresting. Catherine was shaken. "What do you mean?"

"Exactly what I say," he answered calmly. "We haven't had time. I was searched first. But the others won't be long. I'd better hurry it. Look—this is what happened. I knew you had gone out this morning. I saw you climbing Clawson's hill when I was in bed. I got up and dressed as fast as I could and started after you."

Catherine sat down limply in the rocker. Why should Stephen Darrell have started after her? What had he to say to her or to him? Anything there was to say between them had been said long ago, without words. That wasn't what mattered now. It was the bonds that were important. (To Be Continued)

BERN, Switzerland, Jan. 29.—Dr. Walter Hadorn, physician of Barbara Hutton Troubetzkoy, declared today that the condition of the dime-store heiress has shown "certain improvement since yesterday."

Dr. Hadorn explained, however, that it is "still too early to predict she is out of danger." The physician said that the heiress first suffered chronic inflammation of the kidneys and that a perforation of the lower intestine provoked an incipient paralysis of the intestine.

He denied reports that the heiress, wife of Prince Igor Troubetzkoy, is suffering from a heart ailment.

'47 Business Tax Take Betters '46

$282 Million Ohio Balance Noted

Prepaid tax receipts and other collections earmarked for the state treasury indicated a better business year in 1947 for Ohio than was recorded in 1946, according to a release by Don H. Ebright, state treasurer.

The period Jan. 1 through Jan. 17, 1948, compared to the previous year showed an overall $1,559,694.37 increase in collections, Ebright's report said. Balance in the state treasury from receipts, transfer and expenditures showed a total $282,796,883.53 for the period ending Jan. 23, this year.

COLLECTIONS from sale of prepaid tax receipts from Jan. 1-17 totalled $4,119,425.60, an increase of $448,145.81 over the same period last year, Ebright said.

From other collections, the state obtained a total of $4,960,525.07 from assessments and prepayments, use tax and consumers' direct pay, the treasurer revealed. In 1946 the total was $3,846,976.51.

For the week ending Jan. 17, 1948, Pickaway County paid $3,444.40 in prepaid tax receipts with total collections for that period amounting to $8,749.29.

Ike Had Lead In Preference

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—A Fortune Magazine survey released today shows that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was the nation's number one choice for President before he withdrew from the race.

The magazine said the retiring chief of staff led President Truman, with Republicans Thomas E. Dewey, Harold E. Stassen and Gen. Douglas MacArthur virtually tied for third place in the poll.

The survey was conducted before Henry Wallace announced his candidacy on a third party ticket.

Forty-eight percent of those questioned in the survey picked Eisenhower, while 34 percent voted for President Truman.

Oil Tank Blasts Rock Cicero; 2 Firemen Injured

CHICAGO, Jan. 29—A series of oil tank explosions which hurled fire over a block-square area in suburban Cicero was estimated today to have caused at least $500,000 damage.

The fire, beginning with the explosion of an 18,000-gallon tank, raged for nearly four hours late yesterday before brought under control by the entire Cicero fire department. Two firemen were injured, but eight oil company employees escaped safely from the rapidly spreading flames.

Successive blasts and fire destroyed at least 33 tanks at the storage tank farm of the Certified Core Oil Manufacturing Co., which produces core oil used to bind sand in molds at metal foundries.

ONE OF THE earth-jarring blasts hurled an 8,000-gallon tank of oil into nearby Cicero avenue where its flaming contents flowed under an Illinois Central railroad viaduct.

Fire leaped high over the tracks causing a temporary interruption of service on the railroad's main line through Northern Illinois and Iowa.

The fire is believed to have been started by a short circuit under a loading platform.

HOT BATTLE LOOMING

Housing Problem Debate Keeps Politicians Busy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—What looms as the longest, hottest and most politically-explosive housing battle in the nation's history seems to be developing across the country today.

The next month should see it reach a climax here in the capital.

It involves millions of people and billions of dollars, but largely boils down here to two lobbies and the various real estate, landlord and building and loan lobbies.

Naturally, there are plenty of veterans who disagree with the former group and many realtors who don't subscribe to the latter, but those are the two biggest corps of the opposing armies on Capitol Hill.

The veterans want immediate passage of housing legislation. The opposing groups want to avoid the type of legislation the veterans propose—or at least postpone it indefinitely.

BOTH SIDES are openly holding the coming elections over congressional heads to emphasize their points. Surveys indicate that the veterans hold a definite edge in direct potential votes, while the realtors unquestionably are far heavier armed in potential campaign cash.

Which group will be more effective with indirect election influence remains to be seen—and many an unhappy congressman wishes he knew.

Actually, the conflict probably will not hit its hottest pitch for about a month, when the United Veterans Housing Representatives descend on Washington in late February to outline their entire program.

It goes without saying that the realtors will close ranks here at the same time.

Already, however, various outfits on both sides are increasing their legislative skirmishing, testifying before committees, issuing daily press releases and seeing to it that no member of Congress remains unaware of their wishes in the matter.

Typical examples of testimony before the various committees: "The housing shortage is a figment of the imagination!"—a representative of apartment owners speaking.

"THE HOUSING shortage is America's biggest unsolved social problem (and) a challenge to the American way of life." A representative of the veterans speaking.

"If this is not the time to permit federal rent controls to expire, then that time will never come."—Speaker No. one again. "Rent controls must be retained until the housing emergency has been solved."—Speaker No. two.

Thus goes the preparatory committee room patrolling. Equally explosive are the disagreements voiced by the daily barrage of handouts from both sides.

Ray Sawyer, legislative director of Amvets, recently issued a statement charging that the housing shortage was a national disgrace and cause of a majority of the postwar social problems.

"Slums breed crime," his statement continued. "Crowded tenement district spawn juvenile delinquency. The housing shortage places a restraint upon marriage."

"IT TENDS to reduce births, and the mother-in-law type of living increases the odds on divorce. The housing shortage strikes at the very roots of American family life. This problem must be solved!"

Sawyer, incidentally, was one of the group—including members of almost every veterans organization—which announced plans for the housing hegira to Washington late in February.

Pastors Favor Marshall Plan

COLUMBUS, Jan. 29.—Approximately 2,000 delegates to the Ohio Pastors Convention here were on record today almost unanimously favoring an uncut Marshall Plan with no strings attached.

Only one man took the floor to oppose a Marshall Plan with "no conditions on European countries that seem to require them to copy American political or economic patterns."

He was the Rev. Thomas Chryer of the Sandusky African Methodist church, who opposed the expenditure of huge sums of money abroad, considering "the poverty we have in the southern sections of our country."

The convention also resolved late yesterday to urge Congress to allow 100,000 displaced persons to enter this country annually for four years and commended Agriculture Secretary Anderson for favoring the reduction of grain allotted to distillers.

TAKE THE SURE LOSER
AS BETWEEN two ways to seek your contract, suppose one method necessitates trying something which defeats you if it doesn't work. And suppose the other involves the loss of no trick except one you are sure to lose anyway. Is there any argument between which is the better course to pursue? Apparently not, when stated that way. But how about recognizing that the difference between two optional methods may be classified so definitely? The player who tries to be extra rapid may not notice such fundamental considerations.

High School Seniors Booked For Scholarship Exams

Test Feb. 6 May Lead To College

About 65 Pupils To Compete

The Ohio general scholarship test for high school seniors in the Pickaway County area will be given in the Circleville high school social room Feb. 6.

The test is to be given any high school senior in the upper 40 percent of this year's graduating class, whose behavior, scholarship and attitude are satisfactory. About 65 are expected to take the exam.

Members of the local committee set up to give the tests to the seniors are George D. McDowell, chairman, C. D. Bennett, E. R. Garvarick and J. Wray Henry.

They will administer and supervise the test proceedings and turn in all the answer sheets to the State Department of Education.

The test is to be composed of five separate units, allowing the students 30 minutes to answer each unit.

SUBJECTS covered by these units are: English, usage and literature; history, broken down to world history, American history, government and contemporary problems; mathematics, dealing with the fundamentals of algebra and arithmetic; science, reading, comprehension and vocabulary.

Students who rank highest in the state may receive a scholarship from one of Ohio's colleges, but the choice of the students to receive the award is left to the discretion of the college.

The highest 10 students in Pickaway County will receive certificates of honor from the state department, and all others in the upper 25 percent of the group are to receive honorable mention certificates.

All pupils recommended for the test are to be at Circleville

Layman's Panel Chief Bitterly Attacks Anti-Catholic Manifesto

DETROIT, Jan. 29—The founder of the Laymen's National Committee today denounced the newly formed "Protestants and other Americans united for the separation of church and state" as an organization "fostering discord within the ranks of religion."

who founded the Laymen's committee in 1940 and is its executive vice-chairman.

He described the separation group's recent attack upon the Catholic church as "unholy, un-American and contrary to the teachings of Christ."

The attack was made by Dr. Howard Kiroak of New York,

The anti-Catholic manifesto was released in Washington last Jan. 11 and was signed by prominent churchmen, including Dr. John A. Mackay, president of the Princeton theological seminary; Dr. G. Bramley Oxnam, Methodist bishop of New York; Dr. Louis D. Newton, president of the Southern Baptist Convention, and Dr. Edwin McNeill Poteat, president of Colgate-Rochester divinity school.

IT PROTESTED the use of public funds for parochial schools and charged the Catholic church with following a policy

"subversive to religious liberty as guaranteed by the Constitution."

Dr. Kiroak said the separationists are well known "for their leftist leanings" and charged their movement with "playing into the hands of those who would replace our American way of life with godless Communism."

He added that their objective "seems to be cheap and unwarranted attacks on Catholics and glorification of Communism."
